Just after school started we elected class officers for the year. We discussed many different ways of making money for our treasury. Class dues were again $1 a year.

Under Mrs. Lincoln's direction we presented a mock radio program on November 7 as our part in an evening's entertainment presented by each high school grade. As soon as this was over we started selling boxes of Christmas cards and gift wraps. We also sold birthday, Easter and general greeting cards later in the year.

Numbers were sold during January and February on a combination waffle iron and sandwich toaster which was raffled on February 27. It was won by Mrs. Frank Smith of Pewamo.

In January, under the direction of Miss Brayton, we presented a three-act mystery play, "The Phantom Bells." We all enjoyed putting it on and it turned out to be successful.

Our class was sorry to see Martha Cotton leave school after the first semester. She is now attending school in Detroit. This left only fourteen.

Recently the social event of the year was held. It was the Junior-Senior Prom, held April 23. Mrs. Fracc and her Orchestra furnished the music. We decorated the Auditorium in rose and silver, the senior class colors.

September will find us the Seniors of '49. We are looking forward to a grand time.

THE PHANTOM BELLS

A house that has been deserted for years, in the walls of which mysterious bells are heard to tinkle at night; a house where people mysteriously disappear, only to return apparently dead, and then come miraculously to life; a house where mysterious footprints end in the middle of the room as if the owner had suddenly sprouted wings and taken flight--these are a few of the things Laura Rhodes and her young step-mother encounter when they arrive at "The House of the Bells."

The two women are frightened naturally, but are amazed when Ned Carruthers appears with $10,000, saying that Mark Rhodes has called him on the phone instructing him to withdraw this amount and bring it to Mrs. Rhodes. On top of this a detective makes his appearance, saying that Mark Rhodes is deceased. He was dead when the mysterious phone calls were made. All mysteries are solved when detective Joseph Kennedy reveals his true identity as Mark Rhodes.
